

Join education stakeholders across the state for a day focused on public school funding in Michigan...

School Funding Summit

Friday, January 8, 2010 • 9:30 a.m.–4 p.m. • Lansing Radisson Hotel

The School Funding Summit is a day focused entirely on Michigan's system of public school funding – how it works; why it's broken; and how it can be fixed to ensure adequate, equitable, stable funding for all public schools in our state.

This day is designed for public school employees including school administrators, teachers and support professionals, parents, union leaders and staff and community members, business leaders, policymakers and anyone else who has a stake in public education.

Topics to be covered will include:

- Education and Michigan's economic recovery
- Michigan's school funding system – how it works and its history
- Michigan's demographics and how they impact school funding
- Why the current funding system is broken
- How the system can be fixed to ensure secure adequate, equitable, stable funding for Michigan's public schools

Presenters will include:

- Mike Addonizio, Wayne State University, College of Education
- Patrick Anderson, Anderson Economic Group
- Charles Ballard, Michigan State University, Department of Economics
- John Burkhardt, University of Michigan, School of Education
- Doug Drake, Public Policy Associates
- Lynn Jondahl, former state representative

We can only accommodate 300 people at this event – first come, first served.
You are encouraged to register a group from your district.

There is no cost to attend the Summit.
